

The Managers' Guild Trust

10 September 2003

To whom it may concern

Line 2 Line Concepts Limited and The Managers' Guild Trust entered into a contract in August 1995 for Line 2 Line to publish a series of booklets on Community Safety Education topics.

Senior Police Officers throughout the country coordinate the Trust. The Trust's activity is based on the philosophy of "safer communities together", designed to fostered a close and ongoing working relationship with the community.

It should be noted that at that time The Managers' Guild Trust was known as the Police Managers' Guild Trust, the name being changed in June 2003.

Since entering into the contract Line 2 Line have produced a series of five Booklets and at present is completing a repeat of the second booklet in the series.

These booklets have been on awareness, education and prevention of Family Violence, Crime Prevention in its widest sense, Alcohol and Drugs, Better Parenting and Child Abuse.

The booklet at present being completed will result in seven different booklets having been produced.

The booklets are delivered free into households through out New Zealand. In excess of 2 million booklets have been so delivered.

Revenue from advertising and donations has resulted in the Trust being able to donate in excess of $2m to a variety of organisations. The main recipients of the donations being Victim Support Groups, Women's Refuges, Neighbourhood Support groups and the many groups who work with at risks young people or in crime prevention activities and those groups who care for the elderly.

The activities of the Trust has brought much credit to it and to the New Zealand Police for its initiative.

The majority of this credit received comes through the way Line 2 Line conducts its business on behalf of the Trust.

Line 2 Line, its Directors and staff are very professional in their business dealing with the Guild and with the many hundreds of business organisations they deal with each year.

In conclusion I can say The Managers' Guild Trust had the utmost confidence in Line 2 Line Concepts carry out its community crime prevention/safety campaign.

Yours faithfully
